

Marisa Rodriguez-McGill

During her assignment, Marisa Rodriguez-McGill will be exploring multi-modal transportation opportunities to increase access and connectivity to two newly designated wildlife refuges: Valle de Oro National Wildlife Refuge (NWR) and Rio Mora National Wildlife Refuge and Conservation Area (NWRCA). Marisa earned a Bachelor of Arts in Spanish Literature from Colorado College and a Master of City and Regional Planning from The Edward J. Bloustein School at Rutgers University. She is motivated to integrate design with transportation and planning in her mission to create successful places for movement and activity in our communities. After three years as a New York City pedestrian, cyclist and public space user, she is excited to return to the Southwest where she hopes to take up mountain biking and enjoy blue corn tortillas.
